BACKEND ARCHITECTURE COMMENTS

I have read all the pages for the backend architecture and have understood all requirements. I agree with this design architecture and it is suitable for use.

MongoDB is good for applications with evolving data structures, such as content management systems and social networks. PostgreSQL is good for databases that require transactional workflows.

All the proposed architecture can be implemented in the way proposed with the tools and technology just fine.